Oleg Sheremeta Biography

Current as of October 2026. Please do not edit without permission.

Oleg Sheremeta is a Ukrainian flautist and soloist whose work encompasses orchestral performance, solo and chamber music, and conducting. Born in Lviv, Ukraine, he began his musical education at the age of seven at the Solomiya Krushelnytska Lviv Special Music School. He later studied at the Tchaikovsky National Music Academy of Ukraine in Kyiv, graduating with honours in 2008 with a Master of Musical Art degree.

In 2006, at the age of 20, Oleg was appointed Principal Flute of the National Symphony Orchestra of Ukraine, a position he held until 2016. During this period, he toured internationally with the orchestra, appeared regularly as a soloist, and took part in numerous studio recordings of solo repertoire.

Since relocating to China in 2016, Oleg has continued his performing career while expanding his work into orchestral development, music education, and artistic leadership. He has held senior management positions and served as a resident conductor with several orchestras. Alongside performing, he develops concert concepts and programmes, creates arrangements and orchestrations, and produces musical projects for ensembles of varying sizes and configurations. Now based in Shanghai, he performs regularly across China and continues to pursue international engagements.
